Hi! I'm

Jo Edwards

Jo is a warm and compassionate support worker who enjoys helping people remain independent and connected in their own homes. With experience in aged care, mental health, and supporting people with disabilities, she brings patience, understanding, and a collaborative approach to her work. Jo enjoys gardening, cooking, reading, outings, and meaningful conversation, and is equally comfortable with quiet companionship. She is known for her positive outlook, sense of humour, and ability to build genuine connections with the people she supports.

Industry Experience

Jo has previous experience working in aged care and was formally trained in the sector while working for Geneva Healthcare in 2015. She also has extensive experience supporting children and young people with disabilities and neurodiverse needs, giving her a strong understanding of person-centred care. Through her experience, Jo has developed the skills to support people to remain safe, comfortable, and independent in their own homes. She is confident providing companionship and day-to-day support, and her warm, positive nature allows her to build strong relationships with clients and their families.
